

To whomever this may concern,

For as long as I can remember I have listened to klove. In one particular instance, when I was younger, my brothers and I were a little bit roudy in the car and she was getting tired of it. She turned on klove. Surprisingly, it calmed us down. If klove is taken away millions of people will have to settle for secular music, which has a horrible effect on the soul. Here, let me explain. Just recently I was listening to klove, the music is so relaxing. Not only that but its good for the soul. It puts my mind at ease knowing that i am going to go to a better place after I die. Whenever i listen to secular music, it makes me feel horrible, like ive done something wrong; the only thing i did was listen to the music. Letting klove stay on the air is in to public interest because millions of people listen to it, and if you take it down, you're going to upset all of them, even me. Certainly take down all those secular stations that talk about sex, violence, having sex with their moms. Seriously, how immoral is that? Do you want people listening to that or something with a positive message about Gods love? Think about it. Thank you for your time
